Before the game each boy in the court will collect votes for himself at one penny per vote. At the end of the week the money will be counted and at halftime of the powder-puff game the Queen will be presented and crowned. Each of the finalists will choose his escort from Gamma Sigma Omega.

SGA Officers Selected; Win By Straight Ticket

Carlton Murray, a graduate of Byrd High School, was recently elected to head the Student Government Association at Louisiana State University in Shreveport.

Murray, a member of the Sensibles ticket, was swept into office along with the other candidates on the same ticket. Jacquie Hunt, also a graduate of Byrd, was elected vice president; Debbie Smith, a graduate of Saint Vincent's, was chosen secretary.

Madeline Bolin, also from Byrd, was elected representative. Bubba Talbert, from Fair Park High School, was named treasurer after a run-off election in which he faced Parker Davis, a member of the Crucibles ticket.

Miss Neva Norsworthy, faculty sponsor of the SGA, and Mrs. Lurline Dark, counselor and acting dean of women, supervised the election procedure. Balloting was by machine and all students of LSU-S were eligible to vote.

According to a statement made by Mrs. Dark, all candidates conducted a worthy campaign and should be commended.

An installment dinner for all the SGA officers will be held at Sansone's Restaurant on December 12. Roger Ogden, president of the Student Government Association on the LSU-Baton Rouge campus, will install the Shreveport officers.

Dr. Donald E. Shipp, dean of LSU-S, will serve as master of ceremonies. The main address will be delivered by Arden O. French, dean of men on the Baton Rouge campus. His topic is "The Roll of Student Leaders in the Future of LSU-S."

Terry Hansen, an LSU-S student, will give the invocation and Jacquie Hunt will deliver the benediction.

Library Offers Hobby Displays

Are classes becoming a drag? Do you want to branch out? If so, Mrs. Dorcas McCormick, who is responsible for the arrangements in the display cases in the library, may be able to help you.

If you have any hobbies, such as coin collecting, rock collecting, stamp collecting, or special talents that you feel would make an interesting arrangement, go see Mrs. McCormick. She is willing to help anyone with any ideas for a display. If some of you aren't quite so talented or creative, maybe you know someone who is. These people need not be members of the LSU-S.

Don't worry about the amount or size of your contribution; Mrs. McCormick feels something can be worked out for all worthy displays. She does ask that you be willing to let the library use it for at least two weeks.

Anyone who would like to work regularly with Mrs. McCormick on the displays may also contact her for further information.

The previous displays showed objects made by Mr. William E. Borders' graphic arts class, the beginning of LSU-S, and a sea shell collection. Ideas for future displays are objects of Scandinavian, LSU Press books, and artifacts and books of North Louisiana.

The displays are changed every 3 or 4 weeks.

Clubs Choose First Officers

Guess what? You don't have to be a Cicero, Long, or Kennedy to join the Speech Club. The Speech Club will welcome anyone student interested in the broad area of speech, as the club wants to promote a continuing interest in the community of arts.

Club officers recently elected are Joan Murphy, president; Denny Johnson, vice president; Marcia Hatfield, secretary; John Cameron, treasurer; and Mike Fleener, parliamentarian. In charge of publicity are Mike Cook and Melba Howard. Dr. Lillian Hall, Miss Jill Young, and Mr. Dalton Cloud are club sponsors.

Meetings are being held on the second and fourth Wednesdays of every month, at noon in Room 222 of the library building. Every two weeks, guest speakers address the members in the auditorium. Mr. Joseph Gruber, manager of the Shreveport Symphony was the first speaker.

Members have the advantage of being invited to various local theatrical productions at special student rates.

Are You Inhibited?

by Suzette Severs

Age 5: Merry Christmas, Mommy. I made this all by myself just for you!
Age 10: Merry Christmas, Mama. I bought this genuine deer-skin belt with my very own money?
Age 15: Merry Christmas, Mom. I hope you like this album.
Age 16: Merry Christmas. Hope ya' like the present!
Age 17: Got ya' a present, but I don't think you'll like it.
Age 18: Merry Christmas??
Age 19: Oh-is today Christmas?
This is perhaps a little exaggerated, but it does seem as though we harbor a tendency to become more inhibited with each birthday.

Let's take a few more examples.

When was the last time you:
-ran through the grass barefooted
-ran through the grass
-ran
-paid a stranger a sincere compliment
-paid anyone a sincere compliment
-cried for no logical reason
-laughed for no logical reason
-gave a silly present
-sent a card to someone even though there was no occasion
-flew a kite
-went to the zoo or on a picnic
-took a long walk by yourself
-screamed to release tension (it works!)
-became hysterical
-said "I don't care what they think" - and meant it
-talked to yourself without thinking you were crazy
-did anything that "just isn't done"
-been "polite" to someone you detested
-made a special attempt to say the "right" thing
-forced a smile
-held back a grin
-condemned someone for acting "silly"
-tried to please everyone - except yourself
-acted nonchalant
-suppressed any emotion because you didn't want to make a "fool" out of yourself
-been afraid to express your political, religious, or social views in public
-hesitated before saying what you wanted to say

Guilty or not guilty? Have you ever thought about living life the way YOU want to, according to your own standards? Have you ever wished to express your feelings and ideas without the fear of ridicule? Have you ever desired to do things on impulse, spur-of-the-moment and unplanned? Of course, there will always be rules and limitations, determined for our own good. But even within these boundaries exists a wide margin called freedom of choice. Haven't you ever wanted to look into it?

Well then - what's stopping you?

Dean Donald Shipp, John Livingston, and Lee Payne hoist flags for the first time at LSU-S.

Betsy Ross Is Phoney?

Chances are, you glanced at the picture below and thought, "Who wants to read a story about the flag; I know all I need to know about it." But how much do you really know about both our state flag and our national flag?

You probably are aware of the fact that the American flag is red, white, and blue. Bravo! But do you know what the colors symbolize? According to the original description of the flag given by the Continental Congress, white symbolizes purity and innocence; red-hardiness and valor; and blue-vigilance, perseverance, and justice.

Were you under the impression that Betsy Ross made the first flag by hand? Surprise! Historians offer no proof of this testimony. It is known, however, that on June 14, 1777, Congress authorized the stars and stripes design.

The original 13 stripes and stars accepted in 1777 were changed to 15 of each in 1795. By 1812 it needed three more stripes and stars to honor incoming states. On July 4, 1818, Congress restored the original 13 stripes, authorized 20 stars, and ordered one star for every state entering the union.

The state flag of Louisiana was adopted on July 1, 1912, but was first flown about the time of the War of 1812. The seal in the center pictures a pelican feeding its young - a symbol of devotion. Underneath is a white ribbon on which the state motto "Union, Justice and Confidence" is written. The colors are blue, gold, and white.

But, of course, you knew all you needed to know about the flag, didn't you, fellow American?

A Mouse's Monologue

by Russell Knighton

"T'was the night before Christmas and all through the house not a creature was stirring not even a mouse." HA! Another year, another Christmas, and this little mouse has seen quite a few since Saint Nick first climbed down the chimney.

Yeah, there's the master of the house lying there in bed, wondering if his wife caught his hint for that new camera; and his wife dreaming of that special mink-trimmed coat she's wanted for years. Think I'll scamper over to the kids' room. Here we are. And there they are with visions of bicycles, trains, dolls, scooters, watches, and so on dancing in their heads.

Well, old Chris will be here soon and the happiest of all celebrations will begin.

(Early that Christmas morning) Ho-Hum! Want to see the humans' Christmas this very special morning. Ah, just in time, here comes the first one up-the youngest in the family-this is the first Christmas he'll remember. There he goes down the hall yelling, "Santa's been here, Santa's been here!!" Here comes the rest of the family struggling to get their robes on and get to their long-awaited gifts. The room's full of wrapping paper and ribbon as the little ones rip open their presents.

What's this? One of the younger kids is crying. Santa didn't bring him that bicycle he'd been longing for. Father's got a funny frown he's trying to hide. Yes, I guess he didn't get that camera he'd wanted. Seems no one got what he exactly wanted. Of course, they're trying not to show their disappointment. Still, I can't feel the electricity of happiness flowing through the house as it should.

Well, I thought this year would be different. Each has forgotten what Christmas truly means. For them it's a period of receiving. Perhaps next Christmas they'll realize that the joy is in the giving. But what does a little pea-brain mouse like me know about those humans and their Christmas?!

THE PAUPER - The pauper has one distinctive characteristic. The poor guy never has any change.

THE WISEGUY - We've all heard the pauper evade the issue with "Donate to the needy? I am the needy!"

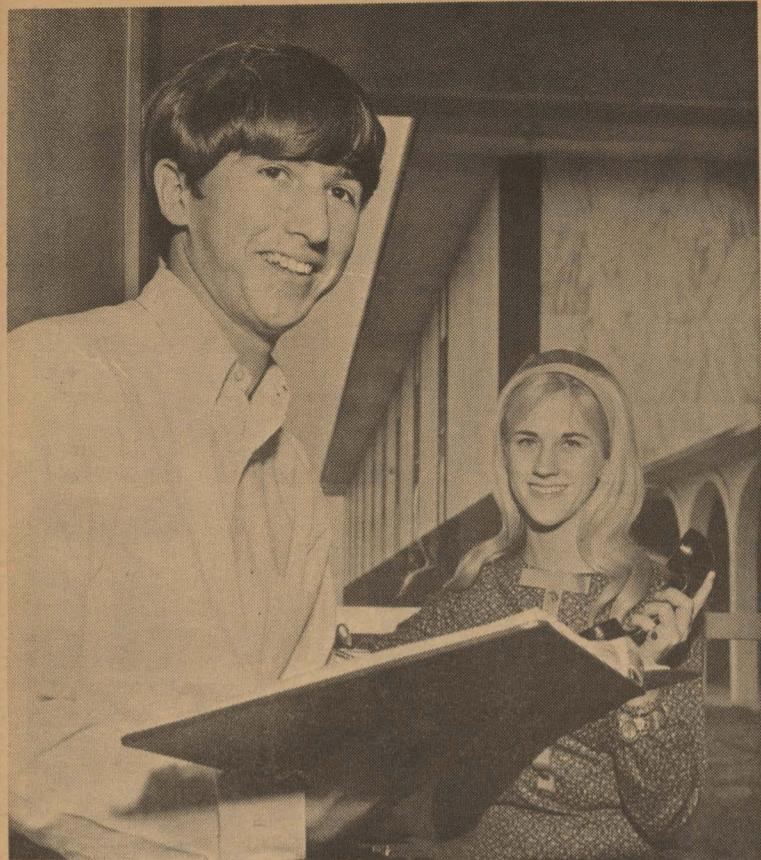

These are only a few of the participants in the play, "Christmas is a Time of Giving". Have you met them - or any others?

"Did you get the wrong number again?" laughs Parker Davis as he looks up the correct one for Jacquie Hunt.

Personalities Active In Student Government

Jacquie Hunt is a graduate of Byrd High School where she was a cheerleader, Homecoming queen, senior favorite and Pelican Girls' State delegate.

The blonde co-ed came to LUS-S to get "used to college." Jacquie states that learning to discipline oneself to studying is an important factor in college. She decided to attend LSU-S this year to learn how to study in a college atmosphere. Next year she plans to attend LSU in Baton Rouge where she will continue her major in physical education.

The former Byrdite goes on to state, "The difference between high school and college is that we have more freedom but we have to acquire more self-discipline."

Preparing for the future seems to be a concern of Jacquie's; she says her greatest learning experience was Pelican Girls' State.

She enjoys traveling and has been to Florida, Washington, California, and Victoria, Canada. Now she wants to go to Hawaii.

When asked about Christmas, Jacquie said that she looks forward to the Christmas season. She enjoys the beautiful lights and decorations and feels that the spirit of giving is brought to life at this time.

In addition to traveling, Jacquie is interested in acrobatics and football. She feels that the spice of life is food and enjoys cooking.

What is a friend? This blue-eyed freshman's opinion is that honesty, faithfulness and unselfishness are the characteristics of a good friend.

Parker Davis protests that his childhood was placid. Perhaps so, up until the time he was fleeing from his sister's friends. That incident ended with his foot being mangled in the lawnmower. Surviving this and other past misfortunes, he progressed on through grammar and high school. In those days it can be said he stood as a paragon for his attendance record. From the fourth grade through the twelfth he was present through rain, sleet, snow and tests. He was graduated from Byrd High School where he was active in Student Council and Red Cross. He shows his interest in LSU-S by being a member of Circle K and by running for treasurer in the recent student government election.

His likes? They include psychedelic music, football, extroverts, sunsets, fishing, deer hunting, red as a color, the South, short blondes, steak and potatoes, the Beatles, and the Associations.

Much of his time is spent playing the bass guitar for the "Rocking Red Eyes."

Why is he here? Parker realizes the importance of college and its relation to success. "With it," he states, "you may make it. Without it, you don't." His major, civil engineering, reflects his like for "anything being built, construction."

As for LSU-S, in particular, he likes starting it. The new freedom and independence of college appeals to him and "not being tied to the place daily." He would like to see LSU expand and grow...and a stadium built.

Davis's mind "isn't on the shelf." He has his own views on today's issues. In his opinion, "the hippie free living idea is not the conflict; it's their use of drugs." As for the draft question, Parker says, "I'm glad I have a four-year deferment but draft card burning and escaping to Canada is merely that...escaping."

As for the future, he will be busy with the band, music, LSU-S, and mainly living. Eventually, he may join the Air Force, and maybe one day he'll visit Russia and Britain.

Who knows, one day Parker Davis may get around to owning all the streets for a whole day. "Take one day, I'd clear everyone off the streets. There'd be only me, and I'd knock over buildings and build them back up...just for grins."

Faculty

Personalities

The feature editor of the ALMAGEST is presenting for this edition personality sketches of the LSU-S student counselors, Mrs. Lurline Dark and Colonel I. F. Bonifay; the business manager, Dr. A. J. Howell; and registrar, Mrs. Fabia Thomas.

Mrs. Lurline Dark received her BS degree and Master of Education degree from Northwestern State College. The new counselor taught in the Louisiana high school system for fifteen years before accepting her position at LSU-S. Previous to her appointment here, Mrs. Dark was counselor at Oak Terrace Jr. high for seven years. She says of her appointment, "I chose LSU-S because I like working with older and more mature students. Also, it affords me an opportunity to do more of what I am trained to do."

About the student body, Mrs. Dark remarked, "Working as closely as I do with the students, I feel qualified to make the statement that we have as fine a student body as can be found any place. With few exceptions the students show a great school spirit and have been most cooperative."

In addition to her work, Mrs. Dark fills her time with gardening, sewing, and her family. She discloses a preference for happy smiling people and dislikes conceited people.

Also serving as counselor is Colonel I. F. Bonifay, who received his Bachelor of Arts degree from LSU with a major in math and science.

Prior to beginning a twenty-six year career in the army where he achieved the rank of Colonel, Colonel Bonifay taught in the high school system. He was graduated from the U. S. Army Command Staff College and the U. S. Army War College.

Colonel Bonifay says, "I feel that LUS-S is a fine school with great potential."

Receiving his BS degree in business education, Dr. A. J. Howell, business manager of LSU-S, went on to complete his academic work and receive his M. Ed. and Ed.D. from LSU.

Dr. James Bates, Health and P.E. instructor, discusses with Mr. Hubert Humphreys the paper which Dr. Bates presented to a group at the Louisiana Teachers' Association Convention held in Bossier City recently. Mr. Humphreys, history instructor, was outgoing president of the Louisiana Council for Social Studies.

Dr. Howell previously served in the University Comptroller's office. From 1955-1965 he was assistant supervisor of the finance division of the State Department of Education.

Dr. Howell enjoys reading, travel, and sports. He feels that the faculty here is experienced and well-qualified. He states, "The student body is outstanding and shows a great deal of interest in helping to build LSU-S."

Mrs. Fabia Thomas, registrar, is no stranger to the LSU system or Shreveport. In 1960 the smiling registrar was appointed to the administrative staff to plan and organize the LSU branch at Alexandria. From 1957-1960, Mrs. Thomas served as guidance director at Bolton High School of Alexandria. Prior to her appointment as registrar here, the one-time LSU student was associated with the LSU General Extension Division, coordinating the graduate resident credit program offered in the Shreveport area.

Mrs. Thomas enjoys fishing, golfing, and sewing.

Commenting on the school, Mrs. Thomas said, "Shreveport students are courteous and exceptionally well-groomed. Our faculty is unusually qualified for a two-year institution."

Assisting Mrs. Thomas in the Registrar's office is Mrs. Evelyn Gunderson. Mrs. Gunderson processes applications and evaluates transcripts in her capacity as admissions' secretary.

Col. William Bonifay, Mrs. Lurline Dark, Mrs. Fabia Thomas, and Dr. A. J. Howell pause for a coffee break between busy hours.

Language Nab Nears Date of Completion

December 11 is the tentative date for the completion of the Language Lab according to the workmen from the Louisiana Electronics Company, installer of the equipment. Mrs. Shirley Brown, head of the Language Department, will be in charge of the new lab.

"It's the best in the state... no brag, just fact," commented Mrs. Brown. The 88-stall lab will contain one stereo music unit and two repeating tape units. Each booth will contain a headset and microphone, and a 12-channel selection. It is hoped that a 27-channel selector may be installed in the future.

French, Spanish, and German tapes will be available to increase the students' listening comprehension and speaking abilities. Other departments may also engage the lab for special use, such as listening to plays, musical, etc.

The lab also contains a listening room, where stereophonic tapes may be headed by means of two 12" speakers.

The students will have to use the lab in their spare time unless on special occasion an entire class wishes to use the facilities.

The lab is located in Room 202 of the Library and will be opened from 9-3 Monday through Friday.

Each language teacher will plan a weekly tape schedule. If any student misses a tape because of an excused absence, he may request that certain tape.

The lab has its own dubbing machines so that the instructors can prepare special lessons. The teacher may also use a special head-set to speak to an individual, a row, or all booths at once.

Six student workers will be available to operate the lab. They are Richard Addison, John Cameron, Frank Coerner, Paul Norton, Howard Sherman and Rosalind Thomas.

Mrs. Brown, with the two other foreign language teachers, Mrs. Nell Holloway and Miss Gayle Southerland has been working on the project since September of this year. She says sympathetically, Dean Shipp has been working on the lab for nearly two years.

"Testing, 1-2, testing," smile language instructors Mrs. Shirley Brown and Miss Gayle Southerland, as they try out the new language laboratory. Guinea pigs are Steve McKenzie, Lynn Sullivan, and Martha Pinada.

Biology Club

Initial officers for the Biology Club of LSU-S have been elected. Steve Thompson was chosen president; David Warren, vice president; Kennie Kitchens, secretary; and Marcia Garcia, treasurer.

The club has met twice and club members are writing their constitution. Several projects are in the planning stage. Among these are a display case exhibiting specimens collected, a field trip, and a toy sale to raise funds.

The Biology Club meets regularly on Wednesdays at 12 o'clock.

Notice

Male students becoming eighteen years of age are required by law to notify their local Selective Service Board within five days after their eighteenth birthday. A student wishing school deferment has to initiate the request at his local board and then register his Selective Service Number in the Office of the Registrar. Only full-time students are granted student deferment.

Mrs. Dorothy Hubble, faculty sponsor, states that any science or biology student with a C or better grade average is invited to join.

THANK YOU

The ALMAGEST newspaper staff wishes to extend a "Thank You" to two of its honorary members, Mrs. Carolyn Hall and Mrs. A. F. Severs.

Mrs. Hall lettered the title ALMAGEST on the front page as well as another to be used at a later date.

Mrs. Severs has drawn a cartoon for the editorial page of each newspaper edited so far this year.

Writers' Society Sponsors Contests

The College Writers' Society of Louisiana, of which LSU-S is a member, is sponsoring contests for short story, one-act play, poetry, and essay writing.

All regularly enrolled, full-time undergraduate students are eligible to enter. Entries may be submitted in one or more divisions, but only two entries in any one division. A special prize is being offered for the best poem on Louisiana; this entry is in addition to the number indicated.

No college may submit more than twenty-two manuscripts.

In each category three prizes are awarded: $25.00, $10.00, and $5.00. First place prize in the entire contest is a $100.00 bond.

The deadline for mailing all manuscripts is January 15, 1968.

Complete rules may be obtained from any member of the LSU-S English Department.

Atkinson Wins Riding Trophy

Annette Atkinson, a student who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Birdwell took top honors in the Shreveport Boots and Saddle Club rodeo, winning the all-round trophy for the adult class.

She and her horse Little Joke had a lead of 155 points compiled during the summer months. Her nearest competitor was Susan Day, another LSU-S student, who had 82 points. Susan also received a trophy.

Both Annette and Susan competed in barrel racing, flag racing, and pole bending. Points were added to the riders' scores according to the position in which they placed each participation night.

The trophies were presented to these riders by the Board of Directors of the Boots and Saddle Club in the club arena early in November.

Writing a constitution for the newly-formed speech club are officers Mike Cook and Melba Howard, publicity chairmen; John Cameron, treasurer; Denny Johnson, vice-president; and Joan Murphy, president. Not shown are Marcia Hatfield, secretary, and Mike Fleener, parliamentarian.
